EUROPEAN NEWS.

LONDON DOCK MEN WILL NOT UNLOAD DANISH SHIPS.

The New London Chief of the Police Unpopular—A big Offer for Smokeless Powder—King Mivanga of Uganda Converted—Sebastopol Freed From Taxation.

LONDON, June 23.—The London dock laborers have declined to unload Danish vessels arriving here, on the ground that by so doing they would injure the cause of the dock men who are on strike in Copenhagen. In consequence of this action a number of Danish vessels which succeeded in obtaining cargoes in spite of the strike, are lying at their wharves unable to discharge.

Sir Edward Bradford, the new chief commander of the Metropolitan Police, has adopted a course that will cause the force to regret more than ever the resignation of Munroe. One of his first official acts has been to deny the right of members of the police force to hold meetings for the purpose of discussing their grievances, an arbitrary proceeding for which the men were not prepared. This has greatly increased the discontent of the men and made a rebellion in the ranks more probable. The opponents of Sir Edward—those who believe that he was appointed through the influence of the Prince of Wales—are freely predicting that his term of office will be short.

The Shah of Persia has granted a concession to a syndicate of English capitalists to establish loan offices in the cities of Persia.

It is stated on good authority that the French Government recently made an offer of £80,000 to the American inventors of smokeless powder for the secret of manufacture of the explosive. The sum was large but the offer could not be entertained as the secret had only a short time previously been sold to an alien government for an amount somewhat smaller.

Cardinal Lavigere, Archbishop of Algiers, has formally announced to the Vatican the fact that his missionaries have converted King Mivanga, of Uganda, to Catholicism. The ceremony of baptising his dusky majesty will shortly be performed. The Pope becomes his sponsor. The Pope sent to Cardinal manning on the occasion of the latters silver jubilee his own jubilee medal.

The Czar has issued a ukase freeing Sebastopol of all taxation on real property in honor of the defence of that stronghold by the Russians in the Crimean war, which event is shortly to be celebrated on an imposing scale.

The House of Commons is inquiring into the uses made by the Skinners, Haberdashers and other London Companies of their estates in Ireland. Some of these companies are among the most unfair of Irish landlords. They got their lands either as gifts from English sovereigns or bought them in at very low rates for investment when war had made Ireland a desert, and they have always administered the property for all it has been worth to themselves, and without much regard to the interests of the tenants.

For Organization.

A meeting will be held in Philharmonic Hall this evening for the purpose of organizing a new cricket club. Prof. Foster, who has been working the matter up for some time, is an expert at cricket and a club under his training would without doubt make some of the older clubs pull down their colors. A large meeting is expected to-night and all who take an interest in the game are requested to show up.

Nearly a Serious Accident.

On Saturday evening Mrs. Garland, Mrs. Willis and Master Garland were driving down Fort street in a buggy, when a lot of boys suddenly rushed out from behind the corner and before young Garland could pull the horse up it had knocked down two of the boys and the wheels had passed over them. Luckily neither of the lads were seriously hurt although it will be a lesson to them to keep off the roads while vehicles are passing.

Found Dead.

This afternoon a young man living in one of Leach's cabins missed an old man who also lives in one of the cabins, and on investigation found that he was dead. The old man, who was commonly known as "Dennis," has been sick and in very poor circumstances for some time, and only lived through the kindness of a few charitable people who did all they could for him. When found he was lying across the bed with a glove in his hand, and looked as though he had been dead for some time. He had evidently been doing something about his room and had fallen over the bed from exhaustion and expired. His face was smashed and badly decomposed. He will be remembered as the man who was in the house on Yates street, just above the Clarence, at the time it was burnt, and when he had a very narrow escape.

A Chilliwhack Elopement.

An up-country farmer, says the Telegram, made love to one of Chilliwhack's fair daughters, and in the course of time they became engaged. The young lady has seen scarce seventeen summer's and being young her affections were divided with another who also vowed life-long devotion to her. The first had her parents consent to marriage, but the young lady deferred and then positively refused. While her father was away to vote at some distant polling station she left her home and clandestinely met her lover No. 2 at a neighbor's house. A marriage license had been procured and both sped away to the divine who was to tie the life-long knot. They were married and went to a remote farm house until the parental hurricane might blow over. But the father vowed vengeance and instantly got out a warrant for the daughter's arrest. The minister is to be prosecuted for marrying the daughter, who was under age, and lover No. 1 now threatens to enter an action against the father of the girl for breach of promise.

A Scotch Philanthropist.

Mr. William Quarrier, one of the best known men in the west of Scotland, preached in the Pandora street Presbyterian church Sunday morning, and for Rev. Mr. Macleod in the evening. Mr. Quarrier is the founder of the Scottish Orphan's Home, and his object in coming to British Columbia is to see western Canada, and to judge of its capabilities from personal observation. In the afternoon, the children of both Presbyterian Sunday schools, with their teachers and friends, met in the school room of St. Andrew's church and listened to a very interesting talk from Mr. Quarrier on the character of the work in which he is engaged.

The homes over which Mr. Quarrier is the presiding spirit are situated at the Bridge of Weir, a place a few miles distant from Glasgow. Shelter, food and clothing are here provided for some hundreds, on an average, of the destitute and helpless waifs and strays from the great city, and Mr. Quarrier, to aid him in his work, has been the recipient of thousands upon thousands of pounds from generous donors in all parts of the country. Here, to, the children are fitted for filling useful positions in after life, and many young people of both sexes, in Scotland and in other lands, who to-day find themselves in places of honest, honorable employment, have just cause to bless and venerate the name of William Quarrier. Mr. Quarrier, we understand, will leave for the east again to-morrow.

TO-DAY'S DISPATCHES.

OMAHA BADLY DAMAGED BY A CYCLONE.

Wages Being Reduced Among the Railroad Employees—Big Offers Made for the Privilege of Running the Lotteries—The Newfoundlanders Come to Blows.

HALIFAX, N. S. June 20.—News has been received that the French and English fishermen had a serious fight at Broad Cove two days ago. It began in a quarrel over fishing grounds and the Frenchmen got the worst of it. There were many broken heads and bruised bodies, but no fatalities, no firearms being used. A French man-of-war has gone to the scene.

London's New Chief of Police.

LONDON, June 20.—Colonel Sir Edward Ridley Colbourne Bardford, political under Secretary for the India office, has been appointed to succeed Munro as chief of police. Sir Edward is a friend of the Prince of Wales. He chaperoned Prince Albert Victoria, eldest son of the Prince of Wales, during his recent tour in India. The Radicals denounce the appointment as a job.

Higher Bids for the Lottery.

BATON ROUGE, June 20.—Neuman's bid, offering $1,250,000 yearly for lottery privileges, was introduced in the House to-day. It is said that Neuman, of New Orleans, is ready to bid $5,000,000 annually.

It is believed that the governor will veto the measure if passed, and that it cannot be passed over the veto.

In the discussion this afternoon Representative Stigant created a sensation by stating that Isadore Neuman, the largest holder of Mexican lottery stock in New Orleans, came to a friend of the Louisiana people several days ago and said they were determined to get in on the Louisiana proposition. They would go to the legislature, make on offer of a million and a quarter, and the Louisiana people would have to raise it to a million and a half, and if they were raised they would go as high as five millions, because they were determined to be in the proposition.

Omaha Visited by a Cyclone.

OMAHA, June 23.—Between eight and nine o'clock last evening a severe electric storm accompanied by rain swept over the city. Cellars were flooded in various parts of the town and much property destroyed by water. On 13th street the lightning killed a team of horses attached to a street car. In the northern part of the city the house of R. A. Jacobson was struck. Jacobson was killed and his wife and children badly hurt. At South Omaha the roof was blown off the Grand Central hotel, the interior flooded and a two story house occupied by R. E. Kuhun was struck and burned. Mrs Kuhun and two children were rendered unconscious by the shock and were rescued from the burning building by the firemen who discovered them through the merest chance. The damage here and in the suburbs will reach $20,000.

An Election Riot.

PESTH, June 23.—During the progress of a magistratial election to-day at Kalocia, a large town seventy miles south of this city, a serious rioting occurred. The mob having attacked the voting station was repulsed by the gendarmes with three killed, eight wounded.

Reducing Wages on the U. P.

ST. JOSEPHS, Mo., June 23.—The master mechanics of the St. Joseph and Grand Island Railway yesterday received an order from Omaha to cut down the force of men in his department 25 per cent. There are 200 men employed in the St. Joseph and if the orders are carried out, fifty men will soon be out of a job. This reduction is general over the U. Pacific system and the excitement among the men in the motive power department is considerable. At last reports there were 8,197 men thus employed, but this number has been increased to 9,000 so that 2,250 men are apt to be looking for places other than with U. P.

DETAINED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT.

After a Month's Residence Here Charles Hogan is Arrested.

For some days past Supt. Sheppard of the city police has been in communication with Supt. Crowley of San Francisco in reference to a wanted party, named Chas. Hogan, who is charged with having embezzled $650 from the funds of the Nitrate Powder Co., of 'Frisco, of which he was secretary. The description of Hogan was sent up and a request to locate him. From the description Superintendent Sheppard soon spotted his man, and found that he was living with his wife at the Delmonico. Supt. Sheppard telegraphed to San Francisco that he had found the man who had been living about a month here. An answer was received asking that Hogan be arrested and on Saturday evening Supt. Sheppard took Hogan to the station where he was locked up. It was believed that he would go down by to-day's steamer but he did not and an officer from the United States will probably be sent up after him.

The Young Burglars.

David Craigie and Peter Sawyer, who have attained so much notoriety of late by their having broken into a store on Johnson street and later by their arrest, escape and re-arrest at Westminster, appeared before his honor the police magistrate this morning to answer to the charge of burglary.

Frank Sofertelle the prosecutor swore that on Sunday the 8th inst. he went out and when he returned he found the door broken and a box containing five or six gold rings and a quantity of cash also smashed. They broke three doors to get into the store.

Sergt. Walker swore that he saw the prisoners hanging around the last witnesses store on Sunday the 8th the day of the robbery.

An Indian woman swore that she saw the prisoners at Westminster. Craigie gave her two of the rings produced in court. As soon as she heard that they were stolen she gave them to the police. She also saw Craigie with a gold buckle.

Chief Sheppard said the prisoners had appeared in the court several times for different offenses. In answer to telegrams sent to different police chiefs, he received a telegram from Westminster that Sawyer was arrested.

David Craigie, one of the prisoners, stated that on the 8th inst. Sawyers came to him and said he had a good scheme. He said he had a little money and asked him to go to Westminster. He showed him some rings and money, and said he had got them at Frank's store. He had about $60 with him. Sawyers gave him a gold buckle which he threw away. He gave the witness $20 and they went to Saanich, then to Cowichan and Nanaimo.

Sawyers, on being called, stated that Craigie had met him on the 8th and said he had robbed Frank, and they went together and got the money where he had hid it. There were $90 in all. They met two men who advised Craigie to leave town, as the police were after him. They then went to Nanaimo and Westminster.

The prisoners were then committed for trial.

A VERY CLEVER CANINE.

GYP, THE DOG ADVERTISER, AND HER METHODS OF BUSINESS.

How This Artiste Appears in Public Every Day—Her Fine Habits and Her Fragrant Cigarettes—An Interview with Her—A Black Eyed Genius.

Gyp is visiting Omaha.

Haven't seen her? Don't know Gyp? Nonsense! She may be noticed any day walking up and down Farnam street.

She wears a red satin coat buttoned very lightly around her throat and a toque to match it sets jauntily on her head. The toque is trimmed with feathers and flowers and a flaxen bang peeps from beneath its rim. Gyp has very pretty brown eyes and they gaze through glasses that are perched upon her little nose. Gyp's deportment is very proper except in one respect. She looks straight ahead through her glasses and walks with dignity, and when people make remarks about her—as they generally do—she does not pay any attention to them. She just holds her cigarette firmly in her teeth and assumes an indifferent air. For Gyp smokes when she appears upon the street—that is the only breach in her otherwise faultless demeanor.

But then Gyp is only a dog—a little brown spaniel; the wisest, brightest little spaniel imaginable. Gyp is a dog with a career. She is an artiste in her way, and, as every one knows, artistes often indulge in cigarettes. Only smoking is regarded by Gyp in the light of an accomplishment, which makes her valuable in her professional line.

HER LINE AND GET UP.

And what is Gyp's professional line? Advertising—that is what occupies all her working hours. There are big white letters on her red satin coat, and the letters tell people where to buy certain things. Of course Gyp attracts more attention than a dozen newspapers, and every one who sees the little brown dog trotting along the thoroughfares with her flaxen bangs sewed securely into her red satin toque, her glasses adjusted on her nose and her cigarette in her mouth, is sure to read the white letters.

Gyp has been in the advertising business a year. She would never have thought of entering such a public life if the idea had not been suggested to her by the black-eyed boy who is her master. They did a great many tricks together, and when Gyp learned to smoke a cigar dealer back in Cleveland offered to engage her services. The dealer offered $10 a week, and Gyp and her master signed a contract, and her first engagement was speedily begun, the boy acting as Gyp's manager. It was a success, and Gyp appeared here in Omaha at the end of her season. She wore a blue costume then, and the white letters on her coat, or "habit," as her young manager calls it, exhibited the virtues of a certain brand of cigars.

Gyp is sometimes disappointed in the weather, but she is very particular about fulfilling her contract, which calls for six hours' walking every day—three hours in the morning and three in the afternoon. She confines her promenades to the principal streets, and she is oftentimes annoyed by the crowds which gather around her. But being very demure and self possessed she refuses to linger where she can overhear the remarks of passers by. Once or twice she has been mortified by brusque commands to "move on" from policemen who did not appear to recognize genius—even when it was so well defined as in Gyp's case.

SHE'S ONE OF THE 400.

Gyp is naturally haughty. She is very proud of her satin habit and with true feminine patience bears all the discomforts of fine attire without a single whine of impatience. Oftentimes the wind blows her coat about her feet and her flaxen bangs slip over her eyes. Besides her glasses pinch her nose and she becomes very tired of the cigarette. Yet all artistes who appear in public and calmly accept the homage of the multitude suffer more or less, and why should a dog be exempt from any of the drawbacks that beset an actor's career?

Gyp does not notice other dogs and absolutely refuses to make their acquaintance. As a rule, her showy costume amazes them and they stand and look at her afar off, now and then expressing their canine astonishment in low, deep growls. Iky, Omaha's Bohemian dog—Iky, who has associated with lawyers until his assurance is the despair of every well behaved dog in the town—tried to join Gyp in her daily promenade; but, although Iky had copied many of the manners and much of the address of certain lawyers in the Sheely and Paxton blocks, Iky was ignominiously snubbed.

Moreover, Gyp can talk.

When she was asked about Omaha she expressed the utmost confidence in its future by removing her toque and barking half a dozen times in the most enthusiastic manner. She had no definite opinion about the school bonds, but appeared to have rather melancholy recollections of her own education. She was quite voluble when Dr. Miller's name was mentioned. Dr. Miller had spoken to Gyp on the street and said he thought it was a shame for a p[illegible] dog to be compelled to wear glasses and smoke cigarettes all day long. But Gyp only sat up with her fore feet crossed in a very graceful manner, looked at him kindly through her spectacles, and then moved along down Sixteenth street.—Omaha World-Herald.

The Commercial Value of a Bald Head.

It is no doubt very much to the advantage of a young practitioner to exhibit a "modern antique" appearance, and nothing contributes so greatly to this end as a head which is innocent of hair. There is a real commercial value in a bald head, and this value is by no means confined to the medical profession. Whatever advantage, however, it may confer on a "business young man," to a medical man a fair estimate under favorable circumstances would be, at the lowest, five hundred a year.—Medical Press and Circular.

JAVANESE DANCERS.

One of the Most Interesting Sights at the Paris Exposition.

In a larger and more decorated inclosure, roofed over, but open at the sides, was a sort of theater, where a troop of Javanese girls danced at intervals all day. They were pretty, diminutive creatures, like a cross between babies and idols, wearing helmet-shaped head-dresses, heavy armlets, brooches and buckles, and beautifully embroidered garments which swathed the figure from the arm-pits to the feet, leaving the shoulders and arms bare. The dance was a curious performance and a puzzling one, bizarre rather than barbarous; as monotonous as the devotional exercises of the Shakers, but graceful and sinuous. It ran through a series of evolutions, each dancer advancing, retreating, sidling, circling, without a partner, punctuating the time slightly with the head. The clothes hid the feet, but although there was very little action from the waist down, the movements indicated a swift succession of mincing steps. The arms and hands were incessantly in play, and were extraordinary lithe and flexible; each finger moved independently of the rest, like leaves on a twig, and the hand turned on the wrist like the twig on a branch, and the arm on the shoulder like the branch on a tree. There were many pairs of slender arms, inviting, repelling, interlacing, now arched like bowers, now stretched out like wings for flight, more bewildering than the legs in a ballet, for those at least follow the same step, while each of these bayaderes danced her pas seul subservient only on a common idea. What that may have been nobody could guess, even after watching them for half an hour through different figures, in some of which they whisked the end of a sash from one shoulder to the other. The steps, at times, became more rapid, complex, and mazy, and either the dancers or the musicians, I could not make out which, uttered little cries like the mew of a cat, but the dance did not become more exciting nor apparently reach a climax; it seemed like an Oriental tale, full of trivial incident, and ending without crisis or conclusion. The part played by the hands and arms is akin to the manner of Spanish gypsy dancing, but the immobility of the lower limbs, with a constant use of the feet, recalled the dancing of our Southern negroes, which is strange, as the Malay race has nothing in common, and can hardly have had communication with the primitive tribes of Africa, from whom both the plantation and the Andalusian dancing come. The music was much wilder and queerer even than the dances; it was in two-four time, and had the dotted notes which mark the double shuffle of the bamboula, but recalled no other music I ever heard, not even Chinese. The instruments are all said to be made of reeds, but included a sort of drum and several rude frames like the ancient lyre and Irish harp, from which the players drew sounds like the violin and viola and flute, as well as a ringing note, like musical glasses. The strains were rapid, plaintive, monotonous and sweet, despite discords and insane intervals, which no musician in his senses could catch; there was less melody than rhythm, and a repetition which produced a not unpleasing irritation of the nerves. When musicians and dancers both came to a pause, the wonder still remained what it was all about.—Atlantic.

A WORKING STEWARD.

Lessons to Be Learned from the Career of John Ericsson.

John Ericsson will always be a boy's hero. To read of his inventions, is to believe almost in magic, so wonderful is it that one man should have done so much to revolutionize methods of travel and warfare, as well as to have enlarged the field of mechanics until the possibilities are boundless—for the little solar engine which Ericsson left as a legacy may work as great wonders, when understood and applied, as steam has worked. Great engines may yet be worked by the heat of the sun, as they are now by steam and electricity. Think of the great economy in coal and labor when the sun becomes the generating force in moving machinery! Every boy can not be a John Ericsson, but every boy can hold as a principle in his life the principle which controled him. "Providence has given me greater abilities for use, within certain limits, than to any other mortal. I will be a faithful steward," he said to a friend once; and it was this thought that controled his life. To every boy is given some gift not held by any other boy. It may not be one that will make him marked before the world, but it is this gift that distinguishes him from the rest of the world. What he becomes depends on the use he makes of this gift.

If you read the life of Ericsson, doubtless you will be impressed with one thing—his devotion to study; his determination to understand whatever subject he undertook. He understood the principles of geometry so perfectly, applied them so thoroughly to mechanical drawings, that he found models unnecessary. It was this knowledge that enabled the young Swedish engineer to enter a contest and complete a locomotive in seven weeks and a "Monitor" in one hundred days. Some one gave the definition of genius as the ability to do hard work; and when we read the life of this Swedish boy, who had but slight school advantages, it seems to have been his greatest genius, in spite of the monuments of skill which he left.

Every opportunity to gain knowledge was used, and he studied especially those lines which he felt would help to lead him to his chosen field.

Boys can do that now. There is hardly a city of any size in which a training in any special line can not be followed—art, chemistry, mechanics, electrical engineering, as well as the trades. Never did boys in school have the opportunities that they have now, and he who feels himself a steward will work for the stewardship.—Christian Union

—A clergyman who expended five dollars in order to officiate at a wedding in Harrisburg, Pa., received a fee of three dollars.

In the course of his charge the other day the Bishop of Niagara expressed his regret at the loss of the Church of England of so many young people through marriage with persons outside the fold. Inter-denominational unions are certainly accompanied by difficulties as to church membership, but, as a rule, the bride decides the place of worship the couple shall attend. If therefore the ladies marry outside the Church, the Church may be the gainer. The abandonment of their church by one or other side of the house, however, is a circumstance which shows how lightly doctrinal differences sit upon the people. Persons pass from one religious body to another through marriage without experiencing the slightest doubt as to the propriety of their conduct. In fact, there is continually in progress among the churches a sort of exchange of members which, the more persistently it is practised, produces a toleration and good feeling for and among the churches that is certainly not without its advantages.

CESSION OF HELIGOLAND.

THE EMPRESS FREDERICK AS A DIPLOMATIST.

Its Possession by Germany Completes the Unity of the Empire and Exalts the Emperor—France Dislikes the Change—The Little Island's Non-Importance.

LONDON, June 23.—The proposed cession of Heligoland to Germany is the most recent and significant evidence of England's growing friendship toward the court of Berlin. The cession is not an act of justice or restitution, for the group known as Heligoland is not German in any sense, save in geographical contiguity. Its inhabitants are of Friesian ancestry and in language and blood akin to the Dutch of Holland. The islands were taken, not from Germany, but from Denmark, in the year 1807, which witnessed the crumbling of the old German Empire and the grinding of Prussia between the millstones of Russia and France. Unlike many of England's territorial acquisitions, the seizure of Heligoland was at the time justifiable, for otherwise, it would have become an outlying station of France. But although confined to Great Britain by the peace of 1814, the British have never regarded Heligoland as a permanent addition to the Empire. No large sums have been expended upon fortifications and the expenditures for maintaining the port have not much exceeded £1200 a year and yet the main islet might have been made a Malta, although not a Gibraltar. In the event of a war with Germany Heligoland would be a magnificent naval rendezvous commanding the German trade in the North Sea and forming a station from which the British war vessel could operate with effect against the important commercial cities of the Empire. But England has no apprehension of a war with Germany, and even if such an altogether improbable event occurred, no islands of the sea, however well fortified, could be expected to hold out for any length of time against the British navy. Germany will undoubtedly fortify Heligoland in a manner as formidable as the situation permits. It is a noteworthy fact that the cession of Heligoland is really the cap sheaf in the unification of Germany, regarding Heligoland from its geographical standpoint as German soil. It was Prince Bismarck's ambition to add this little atom of territory to the Empire which he created. Its possession by England, although not originally seized from Germany, was a thorn in the side of the German nation, like Gibraltar to Spain, Malta to Italy, Aden to Arabia, and such as Calais was for centuries to France. The flying of the British flag over a lone outpost in the North Sea has been a perpetual reminder of Prussia's greatest humiliation, and its surrender is the crown of Prussia's triumph.

A despatch from Berlin says that the dowager Empress Frederick was at the bottom of the cession of Heligoland to Germany and that her Imperial Highness had two objects in view in bringing it about, the first was to elevate her son, the Emperor William, to the foremost position in the eyes of the diplomatic world, and the second was the further humiliation of her fallen foe, Prince Bismarck. Every diplomat and politician of note in Europe was aware of the fact that during the whole political career of the ex-Chancellor one of the objects to which he most steadfastly turned was the possession of Heligoland by Germany. Every art practised by the diplomat Prince Bismarck brought into play to compel or cajole England to give up Heligoland to Germany. He once said that German unity would not be complete without the possession of Heligoland. Now the Iron Chancellor has scarcely been relegated to the retirement of private life, when a noble woman at whom he scoffed during the troublous period of her husband's fatal illness, suddenly comes to the front and proves to the world that she was endowed with those political and diplomatic attainments to which the Emperor Frederick frequently alluded. It is no secret that Prince Bismark's ire against the Dowager Empress Frederick was in a great measure caused by the fact that her husband repeatedly sought her counsels in dealing with state affairs. Her son, the Emperor William, no sooner steps into his late father's place than Heligoland, Prince Bismarck's long sought prize, drops into the young Emperor's lap with a "God bless you for a noble son of an English mother." The cession of Heligoland is looked at by France with jealous and unfriendly eyes, for it means closer relations between her hereditary enemy and her recent foe; one the great military and the other the great naval power of Europe. The relations between England and France are every day becoming more embittered. Not content with the aggressive assertion of French treaty rights on the coast of Newfoundland, the French are making themselves obnoxious in the Channel Islands. French fishermen are at liberty to sell their catches in the Island of Jersey, but if the Jerseymen attempt to sell theirs in France their fish are confiscated, and they are liable to imprisonment. The French fleet is gathering in strength on the coasts of Newfoundland and St. Pierre. England stands ready to pay any amount of money that may be awarded by arbitration as an equivalent for the surrender of treaty rights, but there is a strong feeling in Great Britain that France is displaying an uncompromising temper, and is rather disposed to quarrel than not. The Standard says: "A friendly solution will have to be discovered by the two nations, or an unfriendly one will be forced on them. In the interest of our neighbors, therefore, as well as of our own, the danger of a serious and embittered dispute ought to be removed as soon as may be. The English press repudiates the idea of allowing the Egyptian question to have any bearing upon a settlement of the Newfoundland dispute, the claims being that England did the fighting in Egypt and should reap the rewards. The tone of the English papers means plainly that France cannot arbitrate on the Newfoundland issue with the understanding that treaty rights are to be surrendered for a sum of money or that England will uphold by force the claims of her colonists. So far, after weeks of controversy, the Newfoundland fishery quarrel is as far off from a settlement as ever."

SIMILARITY OF SOME SONGS.

Popular Songs of Today That Resemble Favorites of Fifty Years Ago.

It is interesting to study the evolution of popular songs and favorite hymns. "The meaning of song goes deep," says a noted writer. And so it does. Often, however, the original meaning of a song, or the music to which it is set is very different from the later interpretations. Take "Home, Sweet Home," for instance. How it has swept the world's heartstrings since John Howard Payne, "the man without a home," wrote it in 1832. Yet it was part of an opera which proved a dismal failure. The words are not too beautiful and altogether would not be called good poetry, and it is doubtful if they would have carried people by storm had it not been for the exquisite air to which they were adapted. And the air is said to be taken from an old Persian or Arabian love song. This song, however, living on its borrowed music, won Mr. Payne such lasting honors that years after his death a rich American dug up his bones and brought them to this country to be buried again.

Other specimens of metamorphosed meaning equally striking could be quoted by columns. Our patriotic "America" is sung to John Bull's "God Save the Queen," and "Yankee Doodle" was borrowed by our embattled forefathers from an old ditty and turned into a defiant jingle against the British red coats.

Here are some more recent oddities as regards the transformation of popular airs: "When the Robins Nest Again" starts exactly like "Maid of Athens." "Wait Till the Clouds Roll By" begins as does the "Blue Bells of Scotland." Emmet's "Love of the Shamrock" is of the same musical idea as "There Is a Fountain Filled with Blood." Any one comparing Dixey's great success in "Adonis," "It's English, You Know," to the old song "Flying Trapeze," will find that there is but slight modulation. By a change of key and the quartering of a few notes a difference is made between the "Spanish Cavalier" and the chorus of "Peek-a-Boo." "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star, or Will You Meet Me at the Bar," which met with so much favor in "Joshua Whitcomb," is so closely allied to Claribel's "You and I," that they can hardly be distinguished one from the other.

"All on Account of Eliza," from the opera, "Billee Taylor," is nothing less than "How Lovely Are the Messengers," from Mendelssohn's oratorio of "St. Paul." Think of it! One of the grandest of sacred chorals "transmogrified" into comic opera! And last, but not least, that stirring revival hymn, "Hold the Fort," is, so far as the music is concerned, an ancient German drinking song.—New Orleans Picayune.

A Remarkable Statement.

I know a non-hysterical woman who, in her trances, knows facts which altogether transcend her possible normal consciousness, facts about the lives of people whom she never saw or heard of before. I am well aware of all the liabilities to which this statement exposes me, and I make it deliberately, having practically no doubt whatever of its truth. My own impression is that the trance condition is an immensely complex and fluctuating thing, into the understanding of which we have hardly begun to penetrate, and concerning which any very sweeping generalization is sure to be premature. A comparative study of trances and subconscious states is meanwhile of the most urgent importance for the comprehension of our nature.—Professor William James in Scribner's Magazine.

A RED RAG TO THE GOVERNMENT BULL.

The Colonist, with a persistency worthy of a better cause, is hammering away on the single tax question. We honestly believe the more the Colonist keeps at it, the wider will become the breach between the workingmen and the Government, which it is authorized to speak for. The course taken by our contemporary on this and similar questions, just previous to and during the election campaign, was undoubtedly the cause of the signal defeat of the Government in this city. The discussion of single tax, however, was really only a side issue—a suddenly developed incident in the campaign,—but it was sufficient to show to the workingmen what the Government organ was prepared to do whenever the question came within the range of practical politics. By repelling the workingmen of the city, the Colonist drove them bodily into the ranks of the Opposition, to which, it is true, a majority naturally belonged. But why, as a question of policy, go on denouncing every person who assents to the fundamental principle of single tax—equality of taxation—unless, indeed, our contemporary is honestly opposed to any and every reform in the present methods of raising our revenue. Will the monopolistic organ not admit that there are inequalities that ought to be removed, and can it not see any virtue in Georgeism without necessarily embracing the entire theory. There is really no method in the single tax madness of the morning paper, when it continues to misrepresent its political opponents on this question.

The Canadian Tories, of which distinguished company the writer in the Colonist is probably a bright ornament, not so many years ago denounced as "conspirators" and "rebels" the reformers who advocated the abolition of clergy reserves. The Colonist is trying the same tactics to-day. But the last vestige of a state church in Canada was finally swept away, and Church and State are the better for it to-day. The Tories still living who took part in that struggle for liberty and equality have had time to revise their views, and we venture to think that not one of them—not even the writer in the Colonist—would now think of using the term "rebels" to the men who accomplished that great reform. So with the struggle for responsible government, for representation by population, for the ballot act, and for the long series of reforms—all tending to the improvement and betterment of the masses. Why then should our contemporary, in the light of past reforms, denounce as "confiscators" and "robbers" those who believe that there is room for improvement in the manner in which taxation is levied.

JOHN ROBSON is an apostle of temperance—a very poor one, it is true, but still he poses as a friend of the cause. Prohibition, the ultimate end which all radical temperance reformers have in view, is confiscation, which by the way, is being conceded at the present time in England. But would it be right to denounce the "honest" one as a "thief" while possibly he only holds to one-half of the doctrine of the temperance party, and is not prepared to go beyond promising legislation which he never carries out? Mr. ROBSON may be a temperance advocate and a consistent temperance man, but at the same time may not be able to see that prohibition is practical. Nevertheless the Colonist would denounce him as a "robber," a term which the good man could possibly repudiate with much genuine sincerity and indignation.

PROFIT SHARING.

An experiment in profit-sharing was tried by Mr. EDME-JEAN LECLAIRE in 1842, which is reported by Mr. HELBRONNER. The man was a peasant, born in 1801. At ten years of age he was set to herding cattle and swine. At seventeen he went to Paris, penniless, and entered a painter's house as an apprentice. At twenty-two he married and at twenty-six he set up in business for himself in a modest way. He was successful; and, in the year named, he began to divide his profits over a certain sum. From that day down to 1883 no less a sum than $816,000 was divided among the working men. The system was several times changed. The men are graded. Some of them have a proprietory interest in the business; but those who are admitted to that privilege must prove themselves worthy of it by long service, superior abilities and good conduct. The capital of the concern first receives interest out of profits after all bills, salaries and wages are paid. Then the managers receive 25 per cent. of what remains; next the mutual aid society receives 25 per cent.; and lastly 50 per cent. is paid to the working men over and above their normal wages. Mr. HELBRONNER says:

All the workmen and employees share in the profits in proportion to their wages. Thus, in 1881 a workman having worked for the house four and a half hours at the rate of 15 cents an hour, and was paid 68 cents, had, at the end af the year a right to 14 cents bonus. And again, a workman having 2,750½ hours in a year, at the rate of 18 cents an hour, received a bonus of $100. During the same year the smallest bonus received by any employee of the house was $3.13, and the highest was $201. The division is based on the amount of the regular wages; over hours, night hours, gratuities, work done on Sundays and holidays are not counted in the workman's wages for the division of profits.

The bonusses have equalled nearly 24 per cent. of the wages paid. But in the last two years for which returns are made they amounted to 21 per cent. of the wages. That is, for each dollar a man had earned during the year he received an additional 21 cents at the end of the year.

It is gratifying to know that the house has been very successful. In 1885 it employed 716 hands; paid 869,[illegible] francs in wages, while 273,750 francs were divided among the workmen or paid to the provident and interest aid society formed among the workmen to maintain the members in sickness and pension them in old age.

NATIONAL POLICY IN NOVA SCOTIA.

A Halifax contractor, to fill an imperial contract, is importing beef cattle from Nebraska, on which he saves about two cents a pound from what he would have to pay Canadian cattle-raisers. Any Canadian farmer who hopes to see in this an argument in favor of Unrestricted Reciprocity will have to sit up all night to find it.—Toronto World.

This is really no argument for protection, unless it be the doctrine of the National Policyists that the consumer has no rights which the producer is bound to respect. One of two things is apparent from the situation in Nova Scotia and that is, that either the Nova Scotia stock-raiser is not content with a reasonable profit or else that he cannot compete with the Americans, neither of which afford the slightest justification for "cinching" consumers who are necessarily in the majority. If the Nova Scotia stock-raiser is not content with reasonable profit he does not deserve protection, and if he cannot compete with the Americans we have instead of an argument for protection an argument for his going out of the stock-raising business. The fact of the matter is, the situation in Nova Scotia is similar to that in British Columbia, the supply of beef is not equal to the demand. The stock-raiser has no beef to sell at any price. He has already exhausted his supply and so butchers must import to meet their demand. The effect of the increased tariff, therefore, is to impose a hardship on the consumer without corresponding benefit to the producer. The producer having exhausted his resources high tariff is of no benefit to him. Nova Scotia like British Columbia has its limit of productiveness nor all the tariff that can be clapped on will increase it. What right, then, have producers to demand protection on articles they cannot supply? National Policy is a cut off the nose to spite the face game whichever way you look at it, and the consumers are the victims. The situation would not be so bad was the tendency to raise wages. But it has no such tendency. The price of labor is regulated by supply and demand irrespective of cost of living, or at least cost of living obtains only nominal consideration. When labor is scarce wages advance regardless of the cost of bread and butter. When labor is plentiful wages go down to the lowest point that men will work consistent with a bare livelihood. Wages have not advanced in Canada since the 10 per cent. increase to the tariff, nor will they do so while the supply of labor is equal to the demand. If, however, Canadians are content to "cinch" themselves in the interest of a few producers, producers who cannot supply the demand, that is their sovereign privilege. We may suppose, however, that they will learn better by and bye.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

They have a Canadian society in Victoria, Australia, which proposes to celebrate Dominion Day with a ball.

In old days some members of the British Parliament were not above farming themselves out by the hour to commercial firms, in order that they might frank as many letters as they could in the time. One member is said to have received £200 a year for an hour or so a day, and of course every friend of a member expected to have his letters franked as often as he chose to send them.

After a good deal of counting and recounting the official declarations show Mr. Mowatt's majority in the next assembly to be about nineteen to twenty. The Government majority has been considerably lessened. It was about twenty-five or twenty-six in the last assembly.

The News-Advertiser takes "as gospel" the suggestion of the Colonist that another dry-dock should be built at Esquimalt to accommodate the merchant marine. The News ought not to pay so much attention to the Government organ, especially since the result of the election has unsettled its mental equilibrium. A second dry dock at Esquimalt, is about as necessary as a third wheel would be to a bicycle. We do not expect to have another Amphion case for many years.

MR. HENRY HARRISON, who was elected without opposition as Parnellite member for Mid-Tipperary, is the twelfth Protestant member of the Irish Parliamentary party. MR. HARRISON, like MR. KNOX, the recently elected member for West Cavan, is a landlord and a graduate of an English university. Their election marks the attainment of a new stage in the struggle for home rule. It will strengthen MR. PARNELL'S position in the House and make the Irish cause more that ever the cause of English Liberalism.

NEW YORK business men engaged in Brazilian trade do not express very reassuring views as to the immediate future of that country. Just now Brazil is practically under military rule, which is not by any means an improvement upon the administration of the deposed Emperor, Dom Pedro. The people are not allowed any voice in the administration of affairs at present. They will, however, have an opportunity of speaking at the general elections to be held in September, but whether they will be permitted to give a free and untrammeled expression of opinion as to the form of government they will prefer, remains to be seen. A good deal of anxiety exists as to the outcome of the elections, which is having a bad effect financially, and will undoubtedly tend to paralyze business until the crisis of the political struggle is passed. To say the least, the situation is not encouraging. It would not be surprising if Secretary Blaine discovers that he made a serious mistake in recognizing the Provisional Government which deposed Dom Pedro; neither would it be surprising to find the people ere long sighing for the restoration of the mild and benevolent administration of the deposed Emperor, which was a great contrast to the military despotism by which they are now governed.

THE HALL MINE.

TO THE EDITOR:—Your issue of the 19th contained an interesting account of "How the Hall Brothers Found the Famous Mine on Toad Mountain." It would be still more interesting if you could tell us, how the parties who are trying to jump it, discovered it. Yours faithfully, MINER.

MUSICIANS' UNION.

TO THE EDITOR,—In Saturday's issue you publish a letter from Mr. H. S. Sharpe, in which he criticises rather severely the Musicians' Union lately organized in this city. From the tenor of Mr. Sharpe's letter I would infer that he is afraid the 'professional' character of music might be lost sight of, for he says, "music is a profession and should be classed as such." To many people the words "Trades Union" is obnoxious, and suggestive of socialism, anarchy and all kinds of diabolical conspiracies. If the musicians had chosen a more aristocratic designation than "Union," and, following in the footsteps of the other professions (lawyers for instance) applied to the legislature for incorporation, with exclusive privileges, Mr. Sharpe might have had a higher opinion of the organization and its objects. But the idea of musicians organizing a common union, and then capping the climax by affiliating with the Trades Assembly (composed of mechanics and even laborers, in fact all classes of wage earners) is offensive to the "prosessional" nostrils of some people. Mr. Sharpe further states that his experience has shown the words "musical union" meant "musical monopoly and coercion." Pursuing Mr. Sharpe's line of reasoning a little further he must also believe the words "Typographical Union" means "printing monopoly and coercion," and so on with all unions, organized for the protection of wage-earners. The fallacy of this manner of argument is quite apparent. In concluding, Mr. Sharpe says: "Live and let live, say I, and every man get the equivalent for his work, be he musician, or carpenter, or iron moulder." With this sentiment, I perfectly agree, as will all thoughtful unionists. This sentence is in reality the keystone to all unionism. Now let Mr. Sharpe and another gentleman, who has expressed a mild opposition to the Musicians' Union, join that organization and there will be a reasonable assurance that the musicians will be able to live, and not merely exist. Join the Union, Mr. Sharpe and help to maintain fair prices and just treatment for your fellow-workers, and thus elevate the dignity and standing of your profession; but cease belittering by insinuation, or otherwise, any assistance in the same direction that may be rendered by union mechanics and union laborers.

WILL GIVE VICTORIA ITS NEAREST CONTINENTAL CONNECTION.

More than 3,000,000 Acres of the Richest Land in the State of Washington, lying to the West and Southwest, are directly tributary to Port Crescent.

We strongly recommend to our friends and the public generally the advisability of securing a few lots at present prices. Lots that to-day can be bought for hundreds will be worth in a few months as many thousands. We have a limited number of choice lots at present on sale.

ITS PROCEEDINGS AS TOLD BY THE HISTORIAN.

Emigrating to the Land of Snow—The Constituents of Society—Happy Bill Undertakes to Convert Jack who Becomes Eloquent, puts the Good man to Flight.

VII.

EMIGRATING—A SERMON—A CREE POW-WOW—THE VIGILANTES—ONE QUIET NIGHT.

The banjo struck up a merry air when we met on Saturday night. Jack was in a more than usually mad humor and began with the following ditty about the advantages of emigrating to Canada:

EMIGRATING.

THE MANAGING DIRECTOR.

I'm the shareholder's trusted friend,
And I handle the public cash;
And resign now the game must end,
For my health will not stand the crash.
So off where the bad people go,
To the land where the north winds blow,
But if any other nation
Can afford me recreation,
Then farewell to the Land of Snow.

CHORUS—
I'm off where the bad people go,
To Canada's wastes of snow;
I'm a friend of this young nation,
But opposed to annexation,
For I'm off where the bad people go.

THE COMMUNIST.

I'm a Communist, and at large,
And on property I make war;
But the police have my 'pals' in charge,
For a quarrelling with the law.
So off where the bad people go,
To the land which all burglars know;
And my modes of annexation
Shall be set in operation,
In the land of the ice and snow.
CHORUS—I'm off, etc.

THE ANARCHIST.

I'm an Anarchist from the West,
But the climate there's much too hot,
And a Road Agent's work's done best
In a more salubrious spot.
So off where the bad people go,
And where the Vigilates know,
The modes of operation,
In my old beloved location,
On the long trails across the snow.
CHORUS—I'm off, etc.

THE SPORTING GENTLEMAN.

I practice all the arts of cards,
With a very capacious sleeve,
But my countrymen all turn 'pards'
And nobody's left to deceive.
So off where the bad people go,
To the innocent realms of snow,
My beneficent intention
To propound a new invention,
That nobody there seems to know.
CHORUS—I'm off, etc.

THE CLERGYMAN.

Now, my dearest religious friends,
I have founded a church for you,
Your eternal peace, it depends
On joining at once—now, do!
Then off where the bad people go,
Unto Canada's wastes of snow,
And I'll offer cheap lands to them,
So they'll come down there to view them,
That will bring them all back, you know.
CHORUS—I'm off, etc.

Ah, my brethren, how the words of this text come home to the hearts of many sitting here now. How they recal to our minds the innocent occupations of our youth, our pious aspirations for a better land, and our home-sick longings to return to the early and pious ways now long forgotten, or laid aside amid the manifold temptations to do right of preachers and benevolent societies. We look back to the credulous and long-suffering public, the dear deluded public of long ago, a charitable public, a public full of faith in all sorts of things—a faith also now departed. In these latter days we must forsake the old pleasant ways, the devious delightful old ways to the gallows; and, alas that I should say it, are compelled by a cruel, heartless world to earn our living, or do without it. We amend our ways under protest—always under protest—and turn good."

Lest Jack should continue, the mounted police, assisted by the imitation cowboy and the itinerant photographer, with great unanimity inaugurated a Cree powwow, aided and abetted after the first stave, by a frying-pan and spoon, and by all the dogs in the neighborhood. The people of the town thereupon met opposite the post-office tent and hastily organized a vigilance committee, which, armed with a fire-hose, a gamp umbrella and four revolvers, came up with a stern determination to call upon the club and shoot the offenders. On the approach of this force the police, imitation cowboy, itinerant photographer, frying-pan, spoon and dogs desisted from their labors; and in the lull which followed Jack resumed his sermon just where he had left off. Thereupon the entire club, together with the routed vigilantes, fled with haste and disorder into town.

When I thought it was safe, I returned and asked Jack if he would come to church with me next day.

"No, my good youth, but don't ask me, for unlike you I have a reputation, a thing not to be wantonly sacrificed." Jack was putting a fifth stick on his volcano and now came to close the door. "Adieu, my son; for by dint of reckless waste of poetry and eloquence I have procured one quiet night. Bless you!"

VIII.

HAPPY BILL.

The day after the narrative of Duck Lake fight a certain Happy Bill, a Converted Railway Stoker, appeared in town, together with an inoffensive old gentleman, who, when asked his denomination, replied that he was a total abstainer; and a severe and martial young female, who appeared to be the proprietor of the other two.

Frontiersmen respect anything manly and honorable, and for the most part cherish religious feeling far nobler than the puling and whining cant that sometimes gets a monopoly of the name Christian, not by merit, but by loud praying, and bold damning of everybody who doesn't carry a signal of distress as a sign of his hope, and worship Almighty God with the mien and motions of a cur propitiating a bully. These ranting animals are a low breed of cattle; and it is pathetic to note the difference between the scorn and contempt shown for them by western men, with their liking for a manly parson, and their abashed admiration for a real parson's wife. We had in camp a parson who came when the place was pretty rough, eighteen months ago, punched the heads of the toughs; set up all night with the sick and dying, helped those who were hard up—although he never could afford a decent coat, lent books and papers, was never shocked, always had a good joke to tell, and a laugh that made him more friends than wealth would, and was as gentle as a woman with anybody who came to him in trouble. He had just completed his church and parsonage when the big fire came, and his went with the rest. At this crisis came an offer of a good living elsewhere, and when he proposed to the wife and children to go away and be comparatively rich, they said they would not let him go for their sakes, but he must stay with the people in their trouble and build up again what the fire had taken. And now the place was built up again, the church and the parsonage; and the parson had a better congregation than all the bar-rooms put together. And Happy Bill & Co. had come to convert us! For the honor of true religion we gave Happy Bill a hard time of it.

Such is the substance of Jack's speech of gratulation after routing the enemy; for we had sent Happy Bill up one day to 'convert' him, and make a Happy Billite of him.

"But Jack," said the parson, "don't you think that the man was entitled to some respect for coming out here into the wilds to encounter all sorts of hardships and get talked to by men like yourself."

"That man," said Jack, "was 'called' by a Divine Providence to shovel coal; and he was shirking his duty when he knocked off work."

Here is Jack's 'conversion' as taken down by the Historian in shorthand outside the door:

The Converted Stoker wanted to know if he was 'saved.'"

"Dunno," said Jack, blandly, "are you?"

Happy Bill was.

"Lord!" said Jack, devoutly, "then I don't want any in my dish."

"Oh! my brother!" said Bill.

"No small compliment, sir. Proceed!"

"Consider the awful doom that awaits the impenitent, the reckless, abandoned, children of darkness."

"Why not put them in an orphan asylum, these reckless, abandoned, children of—who did you say?

"Do not scoff at the still small voice speaking to your heart, knocking at the door of your—"

"Excuse me, sir, are you the proprietor of the still small voice? Because—a—I'm not deaf. And—a—did you mention the voice as knocking, because you see—"

"Don't think you're again to drive the likes o' me away with ribaldry and mockery of the spirits that—"

"Far be it, sir—"

"I'm proof I say again—"

"Not proof against this, my dear sir—the very finest Old Tom Gin, I assure you in the whole country. Wont you take a horn now, just to freshen you up, or perhaps you would prefer a little Scotch Rye."

"Tempt me not," screamed Bill; "tempt me not! Get thee behind me."

"You labor under a misapprehension, my dear sir," replied Jack, with lofty courtesy. "I'm not going to kick you out."

Bill was now reduced to speechless rage; and Jack profited by his silence by exchanging his former high bred soothing tone for one of profound thought.

"I have been reading of late, sir—won't you be seated—a most interesting and improving book upon the transmogrified Forms and Functions of Occulent Non Existences, as co-ordinate with the Sublunary Contemplation of Bilious Monomania, in the Manifestations of Evangelistic Missionary Cranial Disorder. Have you perused this work, sir?"

"No," said Happy Bill, puzzled, but beginning to be hopeful.

"Well, it is indeed a most soul-inspiring book. I have it here," holding up a Greek Testament, "dealing as it does with our earthly correspondence with transcendental and supernatural environments, and recalls strongly to my mind the speculative analogies concentrated in super-terrestrial and supernal inanities, and the characteristics evinced in the incessant craving of our pedal extremities for airassion and infra-posterior tintinabulatory exercises, and consistent with fradulent exigencies—becoming cumulative in intensity, and finally projecting the disturbing, featherless biped without volition, but at normally efficacious trajectory into interplanetary space."

Happy Bill fled.

NORTHERN NEWS.

Interesting Letter From Our Northern Correspondent—Election Matters.

The report is now going the rounds that Mr. John Flewin, Government Agent at Metlakahtla, is going to resign his position and is to become a candidate at the coming election. What side he intends to join is not known.

On the evening of June 13 the voters of Metlakahtla were called together to hear Mr. Robert Cunningham hold forth and tell the people, if elected, what he would do for them. Mr. C. Todd was unanimously elected chairman, and Mr. John Cunningham secretary. The report from there says Mr. Cunningham excelled himself and astonished the listeners. At the close of the meeting a vote of thanks was tendered the chairman and a report of the meeting ordered to be prepared by the secretary.

Mr. R. Cunningham leaves for the Naas River in a few days, where he will probably again address the voters.

Mr. R. H. Hall of Fort Simpson has also declared his intention to run, but little idea can be formed at present how the majority will vote. Both men are well and favorably known, and although the number of votes balloted will be small, the contest will probably be a lively one.

The boats all started out fishing on June 16th and up to date have not done as well as expected. The run of spring salmon was good last week, but seems to be over now. The sockeye nets are catching a few, but not enough yet to make the cannery men feel too hopeful of filling up.

The Indian Department steamer, Capt. Todd, left for Queen Charlotte Islands on Saturday to allow Mr. Todd to visit the different reservations.

The Barbara Boscowitz arrived here yesterday and after landing a few Chinamen left for Naas river and way ports.

The scow built by the Government has been doing fair work in lifting snags out of the Skeena river. She took out some nasty obstructions to the fishing nets.

A conference of the Church Mission Society was held at Metlakahtla last week and the missionaries appointed to their different stations for the summer.

DEMOC.

INTERIOR ITEMS.

News Notes Collected From the Mountain District Press.

From the Kamloops Sentinel.]

Teachers' examinations open at Kamloops on the fourth of July. It is understood there will be a number of candidates.

The stockmen of the interior are now engaged with the spring round up and branding.

The midsummer examinations in the Kamloops public School will be held on Friday next, during the forenoon. An interesting programme is being prepared by the pupils.

A great amount of rain has fallen at Kamloops during the present week, and reports from all sections of the interior are to the effect that the rain has been general. Farmers and gardeners are quite jubilant thereat, and good hay crops are now assured.

CHILCOTIN NOTES.

The reported rich find of alluvial gold in the neighborhood of Tatla Lake, has much to the disappointment of the settlers in this country, turned out a fizzle. Most of the men who went out have returned. A party consisting of Messrs. Brody, Sword, Robinson and Baer, report not having found any trace of gold. These men went to Chilo Lake with the same result.

Crops are very backward; a sharp frost cut down the vegetables at the start. The weather throughout this spring has been very cold and cloudy, with occasional thunder storms and high winds.

The Government evidently don't intend to spend much money on the roads in this section, as there are only three men employed in improving them. The roads are in a most delapidated condition from Riskie creek to Hanceville.

A petition largely signed by the residents of Chilcotin last winter, was laid before the House by Mr. J. Mason, M. P. P., asking for a bridge across the Chilcotin river at Hanceville. The Government has decided to comply with the request, and $1000 have been appropriated for the purpose. The estimated cost for completion will be nearly $5000.

About 500 head of steers belonging to the Harper estate have been driven across the Chilcotin river at the mouth on to what is known as the Harper range. There is also a large band of brood mares running on the same land.

From the Kootenay Star.]

The steamer Kootenay took in tow a barge on Wednesday morning, carrying engine No. 368 to Sproat for the C. K. R. The trip was made without a hitch of any kind.

Mr. T. L. Haig returned from McCulloch creek Wednesday afternoon with the ballot box. The trip was a most uncomfortable one on account of rains. Even when it was fair overhead the bushes along the trail were dripping with water.

The boilers of the steamer Lytton were tested this week and found to be in perfect order. It will be several days yet before her wheel will be put in motion.

Messrs. F. Fraser, R. Robson and H. Creelman have been elected school trustees at Revelstoke.

Frank Provost, charged with killing one Joseph La Page, has been acquitted at the Donald assizes.

NELSON NOTES.

The mines in the camps are capable of furnishing a large amount of ore to the Revelstoke smelter as soon as the railway from Nelson to Sproat is completed.

The C. P. R. Co's stores at Donald have furnished during the month of May $35,000 worth of supplies to the construction of the Columbia & Kootenay railway.

The Chinese are taking out a considerable amount of gold dust from '49 creek. The Mongolian firm of Kwong On Wo do an extensive business with their countrymen in the way of bartering goods for the precious metal.

Meagre reports concerning a lucky find made by a Frenchman, come from down the river. The lodge which is located as being 30 miles below Sproat and some 8 miles up a certain creek, is said to be 40 feet and averages $50 to the ton.

The Steam Laundry.

J. M. Baldwin, of Rochester, N. Y., lately of San Francisco, arrived from the Sound last evening to take charge of Smith & Roland's new steam laundry, which will be started up in a few weeks. A new piece of machinery has arrived to take the place of the piece that was broken when being put up. The enterprising firm has been constantly at work while waiting for the machinery and the large cracker bakery has now assumed the appearance of a metropolitan laundry.

A Warning.

MR. EDITOR,—It is a well-known fact that the majority of people are inclined to look upon a cold in the head as a matter of little importance—involving at the most only a temporary inconvenience. No more disastrous mistake was ever made. The neglected cold in the head is the source of the catarrhal affections with which about seven-tenths of the people of this country are afflicted, and catarrh itself is too often the preliminary stages to consumption and death. The symptoms of catarrh are manifold, but among them may be mentioned, offensive breath; dull, oppressive headache; offensive droppings from the nostrils into the throat and bronchial tubes; deafness or partial deafness; constant hawking and spitting; weak and watery eyes; a hacking cough and feeling of general debility; ringing in the ears and frequent dizziness. These are but a few of the more general symptoms, and those who experience them should lose no time in applying a remedy. Delays are proverbially dangerous, and in the case of this too prevalent disease may lead to death. We offer Nasal Balm to the public as a positive cure for cold in the head and for catarrh in all its forms and stages. Nasal Balm has been tested in thousands of cases, and the testimonials in our possession prove that it is all we claim for it. It has cured other sufferers, it will cure you. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable and does not require a douche, or any torturing instrument to apply it. Give it a trial and be convinced of its great efficacy. Sold by all dealers or sent post free on receipt of price 50c. for small or $1 for large size bottles by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville, Ont. daw

Pure Lime Fruit Juice.

What is lime juice? This question is rendered necessary by the prominent attention Lime Juice is attracting as the best temperance beverage. The answer is that it should be the juice of the lime fruit without adulterature. By the "MONTSERRAT" Company alone is the lime fruit cultivated for this purpose, and great care should be taken to obtain this brand as supplied to the British Government, in lieu of the numerous concoctions sold under the name of Lime Juice Cordials, Prepared Lime Juice, etc.

Sold by all druggists, grocers and at the leading hotels.

GRANITE CREEK COMPLAINT.

Crookedness Alleged at the Late Elections—Should be Seen To.

A correspondent at Granite Creek writes that the public should be informed of the disgraceful way the late elections were carried on there. To use his own words he said: First: the proclamation was only posted up on the court house on the 8th of May. Second, agents for candidates were refused admission to the polls during election, owing to no Justice of the Peace in that vicinity being home, yet the recorder administered the oath of office to W. Holmes and refused to swear in the agents for candidates, and while the proclamation was posted on the 30th of May, electors did not know who the opposition candidates were until election day. We are at a loss to know how the information was delayed. We expected a one-sided business on the part of our Government officials, but to suspect the sanctity of the mails, breaks us all up, yet what can people expect when those who are non-voters are placed in positions of trust. If the rest of British Columbia votes as this place has done we will have a new government to set the mistakes of the present one right.

FLOGGING IN TACOMA.

Teachers Take Turns to Beat a Boy and the Father Approves.

There is a school row in Tacoma about corporal punishment, which will throw the little tempest in a teapot in Victoria altogether into the shade. Charlie Bradfield, a bad boy and a truant, was being thrashed in the Longfellow school, when a Dr. Eighelz, hearing the boy scream as though he was being murdered, rushed into the building followed by several others. Subsequently he made a complaint before Judge Patrick, and warrants have been issued and served on the principal Miss Annie Jackson, and a teacher Miss Julia Smith, who took turns at holding and whipping the lad.

What complicated the case was the appearance in court of B. W. Bradfield, the boy's father, with a request to have the case against the teachers dismissed. Justice Patrick said it was too late for any such action, and the case must proceed to trial.

The boy was often disobedient, and frequently played "hookee." His father requested Miss Smith to punish him, and he says he will stand by the teachers. There is considerable public indignation among parents over the terrible beating of the boy.

Esquimalt Extension.

Ground will be broke to-morrow morning on the extension of the street railway to Esquimalt and the work will be pushed until completion.

Southward Bound.

The steamer City of Puebla left for San Francisco this morning with the following passengers: C. Worth, A. C. A. Halton, W. H. Hulton, Godsal, Miss Dickinson and C. Hamilton Linden and wife.

Sumass School Election.

The election of a school trustee at Upper Sumass to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Asa Ackerman's retirement, was held on the 16th inst. The candidates were Mr. T. H. Yorke, proposed and seconded by Messrs. J. Musselwhite and H. Johnson, and Mr. Wm. Fadden, proposed and seconded by Messrs. Wm. Blair and M. Fadden. The contest was a keen one, the friends of both parties doing all in their power to elect their man. The best of order prevailed. At the close of the poll the result was: T. F. York, 21; Wm. Fadden, 12. Mr. Yorke was declared elected with a majority of 9 votes.

The Victoria-Portland Route.

A few months ago the large freight traffic that was going on between this city and Portland enabled the Union Pacific to put on the steamer Lakme to wrestle with the business. Since she has been running the business of the company has more than doubled and although she is a big freight carrier she is unable to handle it all and the company has decided to put the steamer State of Washington on the route. The State is a much faster boat than the Lakme and will consequently be able to make two trips to the latter's one. She will also carry passengers, and as the trip to Portland by water is a nice one, no doubt many will take advantage of a fast trip to the web-foot state.

Fishing and Shooting.

Lovers of rod, gun and canoe, should not fail to secure copies of the book "Fishing and Shooting," issued by the General Passenger Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway, for the season of 1890. It is bound in convenient pocket form and contains a vast amount of valuable information concerning the best localities for game and fish in the provinces of Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba, Assiniboia, Alberta and British Columbia, and the states of Maine, Michigan and Wisconsin; the whole embellished with numerous handsome illustrations. Covering, as it does, the haunts of game and fish from the Atlantic to the Pacific, it should prove invaluable to the followers of Nimrod and Walton. Copies furnished free on application to D. E. Brown, general freight and passenger agent, Vancouver.

Merchants Luncheon.

From 11 30 until 2 o'clock and Lowenbrau at the Bank Exchange.

Will Stand in With Them.

The Victoria Trades Assembly has decided to be governed by the other Trades Assemblies of the coast as to what action shall be taken in the matter of the strike at Wellington. The San Francisco Trades Assembly has announced a very determined attitude with regard to the difficulty.

Lectures on Dairying.

Prof. Robertson, of the Central experimental farm, had an interview with Mr. Dewdney in regard to Manitoba, the Northwest and British Columbia prior to his visiting these places with a view of delivering several lectures on dairying. The Minister of the Interior gave Robertson all the information he desired as to the best points he should select for this purpose, and the latter is now busily engaged in making arrangements for his trip. The dairy department of the experimental farm will undoubtedly be a great success under Mr. Robertson.

Building Notes.

The brickmakers say that if the wet weather continues much longer the price of bricks will certainly have to rise with the demand, which will be enormous in a few weeks.

Colbert & Warner's new three storey building, on Yates street, is about completed.

Saunder's new block on Johnson street is one of the prettiest in the city, besides being large and commodious.

Work on Turner's new hotel is progressing slowly on account of the carefulness with which the pressed bricks have to be laid.

The stone work of the new Pandora street Methodist church is progressing very rapidly.

The outside work on the new city hall is being finished up.

Smith & Clarke are still busy on the new Colonial hotel.

Plastering has been commenced in the new Angel hotel.

Jumped his Bail.

Yesterday evening a Chinaman was arrested by Sergt. Walker, by request of Mr. J. Millard, interpreter for the Superior Court of California. Several months ago, the Chinaman, one Chau Foo, was charged in the courts at San Francisco, with unlawfully bringing Chinese into the United States. He was tried and sentenced, but an appeal was made, and Chau Foo was let out on $35,000 bail. His friends made considerable trouble for him, and frightened him with stories of what would be done to him in court. Foo thought discretion the better part of valor, and having no money to pay lawyers, although legal opinion was to the effect that he would be acquitted in the higher courts, he left for Victoria, jumping his bail. Interpreter Millard came up on the steamer yesterday to re-capture the fleeing one, and after the arrest Chau Foo declared his willingness to go back and face the charge, not caring to trouble the officers to get out extradition papers. He was taken down on the steamer leaving this afternoon.

Chinese Loyalty.

A statement commonly made about the Chinese is that loyalty to the Sovereign is a quality unknown amongst them. In a recent issue of The Chinese Recorder, a missionary periodical of Shanghai, this statement is traversed by the Rev. W. S. Amens, who says it is unjust. Their loyalty is not of the exact type familiar in the West; but he gives instances of men, who have given up everything, life included, to serve their Emperor and their country, and proves, by the honor in which their temples are held to this day, that the people appreciate the sentiment from which they died. The constitution of the Government of China is such that the common people are denied active participation in its affairs, hence it is not to be expected that their loyalty should be as open and manifest as in popular government. But once convince the common people of disinterestedness of any enterprise and its public value, and no people on earth are more hearty in their response or more self-denying in action. Suspicion is usually predominant in their minds when any deed of public importance is brought to their notice. This is not to be wondered at, considering their education and environment. It only needs the restoration of public confidence in their leaders to bring to the surface a devotion that is broad, generous and constant.

Death of an Old Miner.

Mr. Thomas Stevens, known by the name of Ike Stevens, died very suddenly at Illecillewaet on Thursday. He had gone for a short walk, appearing in his usual health, when he entered Anderson's hotel and complained of being sick and asked to be taken to a bed, but was unable to reach it and sank down on the floor, dying almost immediately.

Mr. Stevens was a Kentuckian, and was sixty-one years of age. He crossed the plains in 1843 to New Mexico and in 1849 took the Sunset route to California, and always since remained in the west. He was in Feather River, California Gulch and all other noted placer camps in California. He came to British Columbia in 1858, during the Fraser River excitement, went to Cariboo in 1861, and thence drifted with the tide of gold seekers to Omineca and Cassiar. He did some packing in those camps, and later spent some time at Bridge River, in Eagle Pass, with G. B. Wright. In 1886 he was a partner of John Dunn, packing on the Big Bend trail. Since May last year he had a store at Sproat's Landing, and a few weeks ago came to Revelstoke in poor health and went into hospital at Kamloops for a short time. He has had good success in mining at times, but was kind-hearted and generous and did not accumulate a fortune.

WRECK OF THE SARDONYX.

The Steamer Strikes a Rock off Queen Charlotte's Islands—Particulars.

On Friday June 13th, about 1:30 p.m., the C.P.N. Co.'s steamer Sardonyx was proceeding on her way from Port Simpson to Skidigate under full head of steam, and when within 36 miles of there she suddenly brought up on what is known as White Cliff shoal, off Gorham Island. She was about one and a half miles from shore. She at once commenced to fill, and Capt. Smith, after making an examination of the ship, and viewing the position she was in as a very dangerous one should the wind spring up, decided the best thing to do for the safety of the passengers and crew was to leave the ship and proceed to Skidigate, which orders he gave about 4 p.m. Four boats were put into the water, provided with blankets, provisions, etc., and all headed for Skidegate, the first boat reaching there about 12:30 a.m. June 14th.

The same day at 2:30 p.m. a Columbian river fishing boat was obtained from Mr. Tennant, of the Skidigate Oil Works, and with the mate in charge, two of the ship's crew, Mr. Laing, Superintendent of agencies of the British Empire Mutual Life Assurance Co., and Mr. Johnson, agent for British Columbia of the same company, left for Inverness with letters, and to obtain supplies for those left on the island. The first night out camp was pitched about 30 miles from Skidigate, and the next day the boat was taken again and they once more boarded the ill-fated ship. They looked about for food, supplies, and blankets but found very little, everything being wet. They again left the ship and running before a lively breeze reached one of the outlaying islands, where camp was pitched for the night and at an early hour next day left for Inverness which place was reached at 3:30 p. m., June 16th.

The report I received from the mate of the ship is that no such shoal as the ship struck is marked on the chart, and that no blame can be attached to Capt. Smith. It is stated that the ship is a total wreck, being wedged in between two large boulders, one under her stern and one through her port bow. It being only a matter of the first wind from the south-east when the ship will go to pieces.

The passengers who arrived here to await the arrival of the Boscowitz speak in the highest terms of the Rev. Mr. Miller, who did everything in his power to make them comfortable at Skidgate. The mate returned Friday with supplies for those who are left on the Islands. DEMOC.

Capt. Smith, in reporting to Captain Irving, says: "We struck on a rocky shoal June 13, at 1:45 p.m., which shoal the people here inform me has been thrown up by the late earthquake. The bearings from where she lies is Lawn Hill entrance to Skidegate Harbor, bearing north magnetic; and White Cliff in line with with south south-west and of a hill on Massett side, near Chawn Brook, bearing N.W. by W. magnetic 5½ miles off shore, and fully a mile outside of soundings given on chart as six fathoms. She was going full speed, weather clear and not much sea, low tide. At 3:44 proceeded north with all the boats fully ladened with passengers, mails, baggage, crew and provisions to Skidegate village, the first boat reaching the village at 12:40 a.m. The steamer seems hung from under engine room, and should a breeze spring up she will certainly break up."

This explanation of the cause of the wreck is of importance to navigators of our northern waters. The spot where the Sardonyx now lies is in the direct course of vessels making Skidegate, and hundreds of steamers have passed over the same spot before. The earthquake explanation is very likely the correct one, and it is also possible that other rocks may at the same time have been thrown up. All these will require locating on the charts, work, by the bye, the Douglas might do.

Messrs. G. Laing and Wm. Johnson, who were passengers by the ill-fated Sardonyx, and who came down by the Boscowitz from Inverness, say that when they arrived at Inverness after a 260 mile trip in an open boat, they were most hospitably treated by Mr. R. Stapledon and Mr. H. Robertson, who did all in their power to make the wrecked voyagers comfortable.

More Additions.

Messrs. Gilmore & McCandless have effected a lease of the store at present occupied by Henry Saunders and intend making large additions and alterations to their present premises, which will when completed have a depth of 110 feet. They also intend putting in a plate glass front, and when finished they will undoubtedly have one of the best stores north of Portland, if not north of San Francisco.

For City Stables.

The street committee intend to utilize the approach to the water front at the junction of Constance and Discovery streets for a site for a stable for the city. It is more than probable, too, that at an early date a wharf will be built there for the city, where coal, etc. can be landed at a less cost than at present.

Wall Collapsed.

Some time ago the street railway company received permission to excavate under the sidewalk on Constance street, back of their premises, provided that a retaining wall was built. This was done, but the wall didn't retain, it coming down with a crash last week, taking with it part of the street. Workmen are now engaged in clearing up the debris and putting in a solid and substantial wall.

Engine for Rock Crusher.

One of the street committee to-day told a TIMES reporter that Jumbo would soon be available for road rolling. The portable engine which is sometimes used to drive the crusher is at present employed furnishing steam for the drills at the upper end of Pandora street. As soon as this work is done, which will be in a few weeks more, the heavy-weight can go to work smoothing the newly metalled streets.

Dramatic Recital.

At St. Andrew's church hall to-night Mr. Gilbert Parker will give one of his famous dramatic recitals, and a treat is in store for those who attend.

After Mr. Gilbert Parker had delivered a series of lectures and dramatic recitals in Australia, the Right Hon. W. B. Dalley, Q. C., wrote him thus: My dear Mr. Parker—Before you leave us I want to say to you how much I regret your going, and at the same time to tell you with what constant and increasing pleasure I have listened to your lectures and recitals. It is not often that the power of the orator, the genius of the editor and the art and humanity of the author are found in one man; but in you we have found them all. Feeling this and remembering the enjoyment your public work as your private society has given me, I bid you a reluctant God-speed. Chief Justice Martin, who is with me, desires that he may add his tribute of admiration to mine. We both cherish the hope of seeing much of the offspring of your pen in days to come though you we see not. You carry with you hosts of good wishes from Australians, and among them are his who signs himself, My dear Mr. Parker, ever respectfully yours,

WILLIAM BEDE DALLEY.

Manly, Sydney, Australia, Nov. 17, '86.

Mr. Bronson Howard, the famous dramatist, on leaving one of Mr. Parker's tales recited at the Savage Club, London, said: "The author of that story has struck a new view. It is a work of genius and if there is more where that comes from nothing can stay the tide of good fortune to Gilbert Parker." The tale then told was "Rob Royal," which Mr. Parker will himself recite to-night at St. Andrew's church hall.

The members of the Victoria Athletic Club held their annual picnic at Langford Plains yesterday. Athletic sports of all kinds were held, and a general good time had.

The Victoria Union Band delighted a large number of people at the park yesterday afternoon. They have improved wonderfully since they were first organized.

The gentlemen in charge of the Fourth of July celebration at Port Townsend are working very hard to make the affair a success. The full programme for the day will be announced in a few days.

Johnson street, between Blanchard and Douglas, does not seem to have got over the "Johnson street sewer" yet, and it is in a terrible condition. A lot of macadam has been dumped there, but as it lies at present it makes the road worse than ever.

Mr. D. Cartmel of Vancouver, has been appointed by the Agent of the Marine Department at Victoria to inspect the Union Steamship Company's steamer Cutch. This was rendered necessary by reason of the resignation of Mr. W. A. Russell.

Quite a large and appreciative audience assembled in Herring's Opera House Thursday evening, says Truth, to listen to Mr. B. H. West lecture upon the "Single Tax" theory. The eloquent gentleman handled his subject in an able manner, and was frequently the recipient of enthusiastic applause.

The British Columbia Bank authorities have decided to accept Mr. T. C. Sorby's plans for their new bank building to be erected on the corner of Hastings and Richards streets, Vancouver. The edifice will be three stories in height, and will have a frontage of 35 feet on Hastings street by a depth of 120 feet on Richards street, and will cost $40,000.

The ladies of St. Andrew's Church, Vancouver, acknowledge liberal contributions from the following Victoria ladies to the flower festival held last week: Mesdames H. F. Heisterman, E. B. Carmichael, A. J. Smith, S. Lowe, and Messrs. Jas. Hutcheson, Thos. M. Henderson, Angus Campbell, Fred Maclure and others.

Mr. H. Abbott, General Superintendent of the C.P.R., writes to the press to disclaim the alleged responsibility of his Company for the death of Frank Pratt, the jury having declared that the deceased "came to his death through carelessness on the part of the C. P. R. authorities," etc. It appears that the company had nothing to do with the men, a fact, by the way, which should have been ascertained by the jury when holding the inquest. But coroners and coroners' juries, like judges and other juries, do unaccountable things at times.

Rev. G. M. Milligan of Toronto, who preached in St. Andrew's a few weeks ago, has returned home with broadened views of Canada, both in respect to its extent and possibilities. Mr. Milligan, the Globe remarks, has many good words to say regarding the climate, the scenery, the sturdy spirit of progress among the people of the West, the unequalled railroad facilities, the great heritage that awaits the toiling masses of overcrowded cities, and the wonderful future in store for Canada when the fields of this wide expanse are tilled and the mineral and other resources are developed by enterprise and capital.

Gifts to the Park.

Mr. Goodacre has received five fine turtles from Mr. Donald Fraser of Vernon, to add to the collection of "living things" at the park. The Athletic Club have also contributed a grouse. It is only a matter of time before the park will have a first-class zoological collection.

Married in San Francisco.

A San Francisco despatch says: Peter Gianiani, the well-known capitalist, was married last week to Mrs. Katie Miller, daughter of Hon. A. Bunster. The nuptials were celebrated at his residence, 414 Gate avenue, in the presence of many friends. They left immediately on their bridal tour.

New Bank Manager.

Mr. Moore, of the Bank of British Columbia, has arrived in Nanaimo for the purpose of taking charge of the Nanaimo branch of the Bank of British Columbia. Mr. G. A. Goffin, who has been temporarily in charge for the past few months will leave on Tuesday to take a much higher position in the same banking institution.

He Didn't Go.

An item on the 7th page of this issue states that a Chinaman named Chan Foo had gone down to 'Frisco by today's steamer. The item is incorrect as far as the leaving by the boat part of it goes, as at the last minute the Chinaman refused to go, he having been advised to the contrary by a local lawyer, and will contest the matter in the courts.

Boggs—Richardson.

St. James' Church was the scene of a quiet and very happy wedding at 8 o'clock this morning, when Mr. Beaumont Boggs, of Crane, McGregor and Boggs, was married to Miss Louise, the fourth daughter of Geo. Richardson, of the Douglas House. On account of the earliness of the hour there were a very few present at the church when Archdeacon Scriven tied the nuptial knot. The bride was supported by her sisters Georgina and Edith, while the groom was accompanied by his friend Richard Jones. After the ceremony the party was driven to the residence of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served, after which they left for Goldstream, where a few days will be spent. The TIMES joins with the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Boggs in wishing them a happy and prosperous journey through life.
